Voice Vision Value Teen Cultural Engagement Series at Martin Library's Teen Center

The Confronting Racism Coalition is proud to partner with Martin Library to provide a series focused on engaging teens in York County by utilizing advocacy through various mediums. Our goal is to inspire youth across our community to be engaged and work for a stronger York. A local community leader will lead each topic; sessions will be capped at 20 participants per session. Based on what they learn, students will work on a project that will be on display to the public during a celebration on the evening of November 15 in Martin Library.

York County teens between the ages of 13 and 18 may register for one or more sessions at no cost, thanks to a grant from the York County Community Fund's Racial Equity Fund. Each session will run from 4:30 - 5:30 p.m. at Martin Library's Teen Center located on the 2nd floor of Martin Library at 159 E. Market Street, York, PA.
